

Teak Furniture Disclaimer:

Teak is a natural hardwood known for its durability, strength, and resistance to the elements. Over time, when left untreated and exposed to outdoor conditions, teak will naturally develop a silver-gray patina. This weathering process is purely cosmetic and does not affect the structural integrity or longevity of the wood.

Small cracks or surface checking may occur as the wood adjusts to its environment. These are natural characteristics of teak and should not be considered defects. To preserve the original golden-brown color, periodic maintenance such as cleaning and the application of teak-specific oils or sealers is recommended. However, this is a personal aesthetic preference and not necessary for performance.

Color variations, grain differences, and minor imperfections are inherent to natural teak and contribute to its unique beauty.
